Forecast for Thursday 29 Feb 2024

Weather: Sunny spells and scattered showers through the day, these most likely in western areas, with the Lecht and Ben Rinnes likely remaining clear and dry. Showers falling as snow above 400-600m as freezing levels fall through the day. Strong southwesterly winds with summit gales in excess of 60mph on the highest peaks, gradually falling through the late afternoon and evening.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: 60% falling to 40% for a time in the west in the afternoon, the best chance over eastern areas such as the Lecht and Ben Rinnes.

Low cloud and visibility: Broken low cloud with bases around 800m and good visibilities, the best chance of cloud breaks in the east. Visibilities and cloud bases falling rapidly in any snow showers, with bases down to 500m or so.

Met Office Aberdeen Meteorologist's View

Snow showers and strong winds will cause blowing snow or blizzards at times, severely reducing visibilities and making navigation difficult. Strong winds will also provide a severe wind chill and mean that making progress is tiring and potentially hazardous.

Forecast for Friday 01 Mar 2024

Weather: Mostly clear spells but a chance of few showers, these may form a longer spell of precipitation for a time in the east during the evening. Remaining cold but generally drier with lighter winds than Thursday.

Maximum wind: Southerly becoming easterly winds 15-20mph, gusts of 25-30mph possible at times.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: 70%, potentially falling to less than 20% for a time in the east through the evening.

Low cloud and visibility: Generally excellent visibility with patchy cloud bases around 800m, falling poor in any showers.

Temperature: Glens: Plus 2 to plus 5 Celsius.
At 800m: Minus 1 to minus 4 Celsius.
Freezing level: 200-400m.
